

Southern African Wildlife College wins Skills for Sustainability Award

The Southern African Wildlife College (SAWC) was recently announced as one of the winners of the prestigious Mail and Guardian “Greening the Future” awards held in Johannesburg.

For the past decade, the Mail & Guardian’s annual flagship, Greening the Future, has celebrated the achievements of South African society in sustaining a healthy planet. The awards recognize and acknowledge individuals and organizations that contribute to innovation in environmental best practice in South Africa.

As a first time entrant to the Awards, the College is proud to have been acknowledged for the role it plays in conservation education, training and skills development across the conservation and environmental sector. Fittingly the College won the newly established award in the category “Skills for Sustainability”.

